ANNOUNCING A MAJOR NEW JOURNAL

Begell House is delighted to announce a major new publication and invites submission of papers.

Ethics in Biology, Engineering and Medicine (EBEM) will be an important international journal publishing original research and reviews in this interdisciplinary field.

CALL FOR PAPERS

Ethics in Biology, Engineering and Medicine (EBEM) is a new peer-reviewed publication that is published quarterly in electronic and print format.

Papers are now invited for immediate submission for peer-review.

JOURNAL AIMS AND SCOPE

Ethics in Biology, Engineering and Medicine (EBEM) is an international multi-disciplinary publication of original contributions concerning the ethical issues that surround biomedical research and the development of new biomaterials, implants, devices and treatments. This journal publishes peer-reviewed articles on all topics related to ethical concerns and policy related issues as we conduct basic and clinical research to develop life enhancing and life saving technologies for our environment and society. Papers describing the impact of biomedical discoveries and introduction of new biomedical technologies on our environment and society are also welcomed.

With contributions from leading clinicians, ethicists, industry leaders, philosophers, researchers and scientists, we aim to provide a forum for improved understanding of the ethical challenges that face us with the rapid progress of biomedical sciences, biomedical engineering and clinical medicine. Ethics in Biology, Engineering and Medicine (EBEM) publishes original articles, reviews, brief reports, case studies, commentaries, book reviews and correspondence. Occasionally special issues will be published addressing specific interest topics (e.g., clinical trials, animal research and nanobiotechnology).

The Ethics in Biology, Engineering and Medicine (EBEM) is the official journal of The Association for Medical Ethics.
